

More Ski Jumps
For Palos Hills

Series of ski jumps at Palos Hills, in the far south section, which are to be baptized "Goodnow Ski Jumps," in honor of Commissioner Charles N. Goodnow.

Wooded preserve of large acreage at Beverly Hills, to be known as "Tom Murray Hill, in honor of Commissioner Tom Murray.

Dam in the Desplaines River at Western Springs, to be known as "Kriz Dam" in recognition of the public service of Commissioner Frank Kriz.

Eighteen-hole golf course in the northern section of the county, to be known as "Penfield Golf Course" in honor of Commissioner Frederick W. Penfield.

Other large wooded units shortly to be officially announced and opened to the public are:

Busse woods, in the vicinity of Palatine, named in honor of Wm. Busse, former president of the commission.

Miller forest preserve, adjacent to River Forest, to bear the name of Geo. A. Miller, a present member of the commission.

Pittsford woods, in the south section of the county, named in honor of Commissioner Joseph M. Fitzgerald.

Kavanaugh preserve, fringing the western edge of the county, to be named as a memorial to Commissioner M. F. Kavanaugh.

Piereson Hills, in the Chicago Heights area, to stand as a memorial to Commissioner D. D. Piereson.

Peterson grove, in the North Town area, named in honor of Commissioner C. S. Peterson.

Wilson preserve, in the far northwest, a memorial to Commissioner Frank J. Wilson.

In addition to the foregoing, there is now in course of construction at Palos Hills, a boy's permanent recreational center and log cabin, to be known as "Camp Wheelan" in honor of Commissioner Emmet Wheelan. This camp will accommodate more than 150 boys throughout the summer months.

The new tourist camp at Lyons—one of the most pretentious in the United States, with sunken gardens and complete overnight accommodations for autoists—is to be given the name of "Camp Cermak" in honor of the president of the commission.

County authorities asserted that their program, which contemplates surrounding Chicago with an unbroken chain of woodlands, is to proceed rapidly. Patches of virgin forest are being taken over from time to time, and additional negotiations entered into for further extensions of the system.

Hunting Not Changed Says Clk.

Karl E. Krapp, village clerk of Mokena, states that misinformation has been spread as to the age requirements for taking out hunting licenses. Mr. Krapp states that the game laws of 1923 relative to ages of persons taking out such license has not been changed. All persons from 16 years of age and over can except foreigners, apply and take out hunting licenses. All under 16 years of age can only take out hunting licenses if their application is signed by their parents or guardians.

Mr. Krapp says that a misunderstanding has been credited by a story which has been spread that no minors could get a hunting license, hence his explanation.

Harry Philips, Oak
Lawn, Buys 22 Lots

The phenomenal boom of Oak Lawn is going to be given a still greater impetus from present indications as the result of Harry Philips purchasing 22 lots on Minnie Avenue the past week. Mr. Philips who is a building contractor and who has had much to do in connection with the upbuilding of Oak Lawn and will add much more to the growth of this town by his newly acquired property. Mr. Philips states that he sold $30,000 worth of Oak Lawn real estate last year. He has been very active this summer in building new homes.

Coupe Turns A
Somersault Into Ditch; None Hurt

A Ford coupe in which a young man and woman were riding figured in a peculiar accident between Mokena and Tinley Park, Sunday night.

The road leading to the approach of a bridge spanning a drainage ditch near the Christ Hohenstein farm has recently been given a fresh coat of stone dressing. The Ford which is said to have been going 35 miles an hour, started to skid as the wheels hit the loose stones and got beyond the driver's control. The front fenders hit the edge of the bridge and the force of the impact catapulted the driver and woman thru the top of the car. They landed unhurt in the grass on the opposite side of the road while the car turned two somersaults and landed at the bottom of the drainage ditch 20 feet below. This ditch has just been freshly dug and cleaned out so the car had an easy drop, only one wheel being torn off. The car was from New Brunswick, Ind.

Monday afternoon an auto wrecked and the owner of the car, came and got it.

Catholics To Build
Hall At Mokena

For some time there has been an agitation on that Mokena should have a public hall but no one was willing to start the movement along until last winter when the St. Mary Catholic church took up the matter and held a number of bunco parties to start a hall fund. The movement has now reached the stage where a hall seems to be an assured fact.

The hall is to be located between the John Marti and John F. Schultz properties. The hall is to be a portable building size 30x70 feet and is to be ready for use by Thanksgiving. This hall will be rented for all public or private dances and affairs of all kinds. Later it is proposed to use it for parochial school purposes.

Miss Bettenhausen An Autumn Bride

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bettenhausen near Tinley Park when her daughter Miss Florence became the bride of John Breithbarth of Tinley Park. The ceremony took place at three o'clock and was performed by Rev. Wm. Greve, pastor of the Bachelor Grove Lutheran church and was witnessed by the relatives of both parties. In the evening the usual tin music serenade was rendered to them by a large crowd of friends and neighbors.

Tinley Property Brings Big Prices.

Fifty-eight acres were purchased Friday by the Cook County Forest Preserve commissioners in Bremen township from Henry Huhnstock for $42,526.

This addition to Cook county's big outer belt of parkland lies just south of Ridgeland avenue.

The Forest Preserve District has also bought 46 acres from Wm. Rauch at 143rd and Bachelor Grove avenue for $500 an acre or $20,431.

Frank H. Robertson has bought from Dorothea Hartman 158 acres on 167th st., in Bremen township and adjoining Tinley Park on the north for $75,000.

Geo. J. Hartman has sold to Albert F. Marthe 115 acres between Kedzie and Crawford ave., on 175th street for $55,000.

The Bramstadt farm of 240 acres at Coopers Grove is reported to have been sold the past week to a Chicago realtor for $1250 per acre. This sets a record price for farm land in this section.

TIME CHANGES SUNDAY

Oak Lawn School Notes

OAK LAWN STANDARD SCHOOL DISTRICT. 122

A few interesting incidents have occurred since our last news item.

Mr. Wm. O'Brien, one of Oak Lawn's competent piano repairmen and tuners, repaired our school piano and put it in perfect tune so we now are having some real music and more interesting morning exercises. We are very grateful to our board for this and our only regret is, that we have not a piano for the primary room, too. Hope we may have one later.

Mr. Olson who is working in our Field Health and Nursing Service came and gave our school a thorough inspection, Thursday, and pronounced it as one of the best. He also took a sample of water from our school pump for the purpose of having it analyzed. Of course we think it is O. K. but there is nothing like being sure when the health of our children is at stake.

Miss Fulmer of Chicago, who is supervisor of our Cook County Field Nurses, visited us Friday giving an interesting health talk to the children of the upper grades and explaining to Mr. Simmons, her plans for a "good health campaign and contest" throughout Cook County this year. Of course we shall do our bit in co-operating with Miss Fulmer. She also made two interesting photographs of our teachers and pupils, some grouped in front of the building and some climbing on the sides and top of her auto. Of course our pictures are to be published if we excel in the contest. WE'LL DO OUR BEST!

One of our pupils narrowly escaped being struck by an auto on the way to school on 95th Street, Friday. Parents and teachers must work together in training the children in traffic regulations and all children MUST be careful on these crowded pavements. All pedestrians should walk on the left side of the street in order to be out of danger of autos approaching from the rear, and also keep a steady look-out straight ahead.

Forest Preserves To Comprise 50,000 Acres

Plans to extend the present forest preserve system encircling Chicago from 30,500 to approximately 50,000 acres, establishment of new woodland zones, golf courses, ski jumps and other recreational facilities in all parts of this territory, were announced Saturday by the Cook County commission.

Coincidentally were disclosed a series of new names which are to be honored by attachment to these additions and passed down into county history as permanent memorials to the public spirit of their bearers.

To Dedicate New Midlothian Luth.
Church Sunday

The Mokena Lutheran Church having accepted the invitation of the Midlothian congregation to attend the dedicatory services of its new church building, will turn out en masse on Sunday morning. The services in Midlothian begin at ten o'clock in the morning. Pastor Wangerin will preach the dedication sermon in the English language. No services will therefore be conducted in the Mokena Lutheran church on Sunday morning.

Dance Every Sat.
At Frankfort

The Frankfort Industrial Club has had a very successful dance season and last Saturday they broke all previous attendance records when 439 tickets were sold.

During the month of October starting with Saturday, October 3rd this club will hold a dance every Saturday night at their pavilion in the Borman Grove.

During the summer the club did rent their pavilion to the Chicago Heights Masons for a series of band concerts and dances and this series has now closed.

Edw. H. Riley, A.
E. F. Veteran Dies
At Columbus, O.

Mrs. G. F. Mann accompanied her nieces, Mrs. Frank Memsic and Miss Agnes Riley to Columbus, Ohio Sunday to attend the funeral there Monday of their brother Edw. H. Riley. They were joined in Chicago by Mrs. E. P. Riley of Zion, the mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haines, brother and sister-in-law of the widow and Mr. Albert Smutney, a friend of the deceased. Mr. Riley will be remembered by many in Oak Lawn as he was a frequent visitor in the home of his uncle and aunt. Mr. Riley was another young American who made the Supreme Sacrifice, the malady which caused his death having been contracted in the trenches during the World War. He was a member of the Auburn Park Masonic Lodge, Chicago, and the funeral services were conducted by Magnolia Lodge, Columbus. He was a member of Co. B, 4th Ohio 166th Infantry, Rainbow Division, and young men from his own Company, in uniform acted as pall bearers. The bugler of the Company sounded taps, the Soldiers' last retreat at the grave. The profusion of floral offerings showed the high esteem in which he was held in Columbus, where he has resided the past year. He is survived by his widow, father, mother, and two sisters.

Former Preachers Ordered Deported

Press dispatches from Berlin, Germany state that Gotthard and Otto Strohsehn former preachers who were recently arrested for alleged activities in the organization of the "Knights of the Firey Cross" said to have been patterned after the American Ku Klux Klan, have been found guilty and ordered deported. Both men are well known in Frankfort for the airplane they invented but which never materialized and in which Frankfort people invested hundreds of dollars.

St. Gerald's at Oak Lawn Scene of An Autumn Wedding

Rose Jachim and Thomas Bojarski of Calumet City, were married Sunday Sept. 13th, at St. Gerald's church, by Rev. Peter J. Gerathy.

Mrs. Esther Wright sang just before the couple entered the church and at the close of the ceremony. Miss Gertrude Landahl played Wagner's wedding march as the bride party entered the church.

Natcia Jachim was flower girl and was dressed in pink silk trimmed with satin bows carrying a basket of flowers.

Eugene Stincak was ring bearer and was dressed in white satin and carried the ring on a white satin pillow. The attendants were Helen Pomierski and Antoinette Jachim. The ushers were friends of the groom.

The wedding supper was at the home of the bride in Calumet City. Mr. and Mrs. Bojarski have gone to housekeeping in their own home in Calumet City where Mr. Bojarski is one of the leading grocers and also conducts a meat market.

Mokena Dance Season near Close

Mokena Men's Club dancing season is drawing to a close for 1925

Three dances are scheduled for October. The 10th of October Ted Clark and his Rhythm Kings are to play a return engagement. The Club has had very successful dances and the entire season is said to have been a profitable one.

Myra Kolber of Mokena Hostess

Miss Myra Kolber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kolber was 8 years old Wednesday and in honor of the event, her mother entertained her school mates at a party after school Wednesday.

The rooms were beautifully decorated in pink paper streamers.

Miss Ada Semmler received the prize for carrying most beans on a knife across the room. Miss Lucille

Contest Time Extended One Week and Contestants are Rolling Up Heavy Votes

The Great Subscription Contest in which The News-Bulletin is now engaged in connection with two other Will County papers has been extended to next Saturday, Oct. 3, and interest is waxing keener as each day goes by. Subscriptions are pouring in by the hundreds and the circulation of The News-Bulletin is gaining by leaps and bounds and reader interest in proportion.

We are gaining in advertising as well as circulation and when our circulation hits the 1500 mark as eventually it will, we offer the business men of the territory they can not afford to pass up.

Our contestants are as fine a set of live wire salesmen and women as ever entered any contest field and with another week to go on and a fine field to work in they will turn in a fine bunch of business. The prizes that are being offered them are well worth their effort to work for and no contestant will work for nothing as a cash commission is to be paid to those who do not win a prize. Thus everything is on the square. There is no chance for anyone to lose.

The Rock Creek Country Club who is promoting the contest is composed of live and reputable Joliet business men who will make good to the letter whatever part they have in this contest.

Remember the contest will end on Saturday, Oct. 3rd and will be followed by a big barbecue and picnic at the club grounds near Troy on Sunday, October 4th.

The standings of the various contestants show that they are all hustlers are not letting any grass grow under them. This week Miss Esther Hellmuth of Mokena heads the list with 913,000 votes which means she is fast nearing the million mark. By next week the million mark will be passed with a wide margin. Every contestant should double their efforts in the final lap of the race to gain one of the big prizes and work will do it. Go in to win and don't take "No" for an answer.

New subscribers are asked to be little patient if they do not get a copy of the paper right away for it takes quite a lot of checking up with hundreds of subscriptions coming in to get them on the regular list. We will make every effort to get the new subscriptions started as quickly as possible.

Fisher received the prize for pinning the donkey's tail on the best. Little Mary Powers received the prize for sticking most peanuts.

The luncheon served, carried out the color idea. Each little guest received a cupie doll dressed in pink crepe paper and ribbon bows. All had a fine time and Miss Myra received many pretty gifts.

Contest Standing

Esther Hellmuth, Mokena,	913,000
Clara Janke, Joliet,	903,000
Matthew Fay, Joliet,	875,000
Marcella Eichler, Oak Lw.,	509,000
Irene Costello, Joliet,	450,000
Edna Weidner, Oak Lw.,	360,000
C. Smeatham, Oak Lw.,	314,000
Bertha Obsitnik, Joliet,	275,000
Lucille Lindblad, Joliet,	270,000
Genevieve Miklic, Joliet,	260,000

This CONTEST will close next Saturday night Oct. 3rd, at 8 o'clock. Next Thursday, Friday and Saturday there will be a locked ballot box in the office of the News-Bulletin. After next Wednesday no subscriptions are to be turned in to either the Contest Mgr., or Publisher. After next Wednesday September 30 all subscriptions to be deposited in the locked ballot box and no one except the contestant will know what is deposited. Saturday night at 8 o'clock the 3rd of October 1925 the contest will be officially closed and with the contest manager, Mr. P. E. Frankie of Joliet, Wm. Semmler, editor and publisher of the News-Bulletin and three disinterested persons acting as judges, the box will be opened and the votes counted and the winners will be declared.

The names and votes of the one standing highest in the local district will be taken to Joliet where it will be compared with the ones standing the highest in the other districts in the county. The contestant standing the highest in the county will be awarded the automobile as the capital prize.

Mokena Has Broad Casting Station

Undoubtedly there are not many persons who realize that Mokena has a radio broadcasting station. This station is operated by Aey Woods and is listed as station 9CCG.

Mr. Woods has taken a government examination and passed with high marks. He has and is now engaged in relay work. He has a fine equipped station at his home and assembled the entire outfit himself. He has reached many stations on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

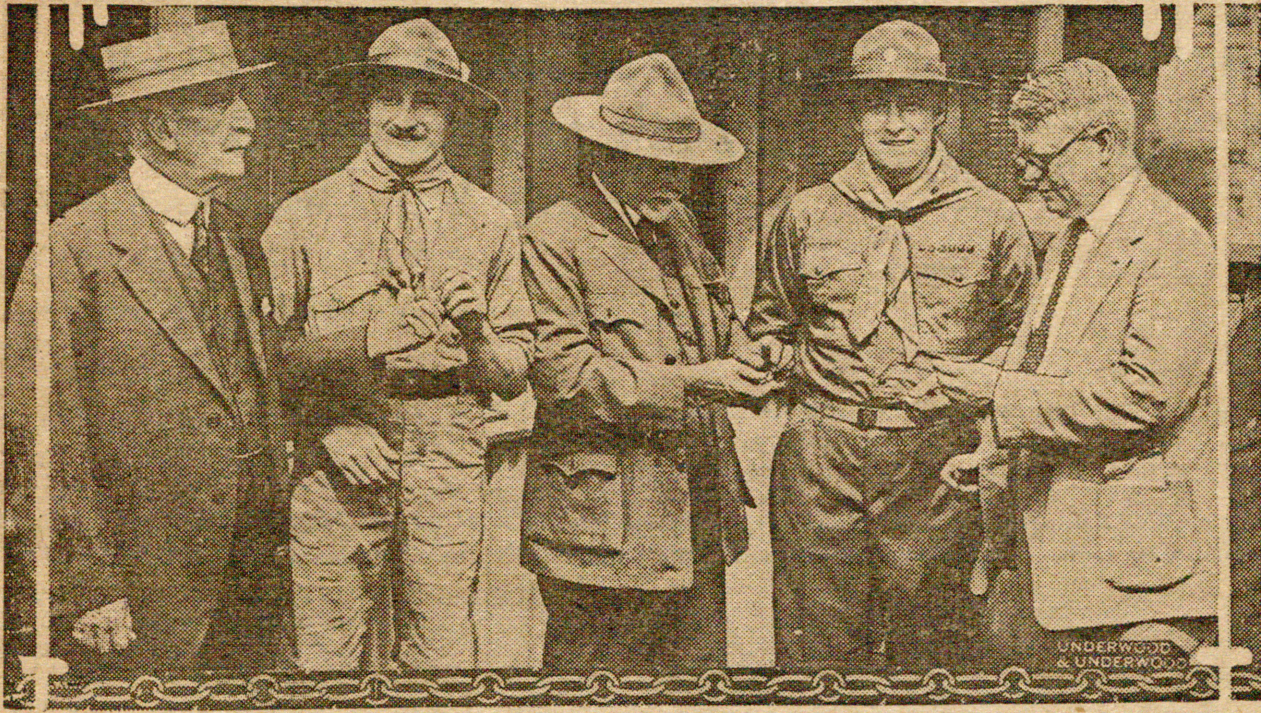

Recently Mr. Woods attended a big radio convention held in Chicago and met many widely known radio men, some from Europe. At the convention Mr. Woods took an examination on radio code work and scored 99 per cent. The next big radio convention will be held at San Francisco which Mr. Woods is expecting to attend.

TODAY'S "AGAMEDE"?

Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, head of the department of home economics in Cornell university, it is rumored will be the modern "Agamede." A nation-wide movement is under way by the Women's Foundation for Health of New York to find a present-day counterpart of that Grecian woman who, 40,000 years ago, as mentioned in Homer's "Iliad," brought health and happiness to human beings. The present day "Agamede" will get the gold Agamede medal from the foundation.

HE SUED A MARCHESA

Harold J. Brennan, a Chicago grocery clerk, has begun suit for $1,000, 000 for slander against the Marchesa Adelaide de Jannilli, and also has sworn out a warrant for her arrest for attempted extortion. The marchesa, who is said to be the widow of a former Italian minister to Japan, was formerly Adelaide Rees, daughter of an American army officer. The suit and warrant are the aftermath of a week-end party when the marchesa said her jewels were taken.

Lesson for September 27

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT—"Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see Him not yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory"—I Peter 1:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Love for His People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Best Wishes for His People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Gospel Spread.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of the Gospel.

The method of review must always be determined largely by the genius of the teacher and the condition of the class. For this review, two methods are suggested:

1.—The Biographical. This can be used in all the grades excepting, perhaps, the beginners. When skillfully presented, living, active personalities appeal to the heart and imagination of all ages. Among the interesting characters appear Paul, Luke, Silas, Timothy, Barnabas, Mark, Lydia, the Philippian jailer, James and the slave girl at Philippi. These characters can be assigned to the members of the class the preceding week.

2. The Summary Method. This involves the presentation of the salient points, and the central outstanding message of each lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

July 5.

The sending forth of Paul and Barnabas marked the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the church. The Holy Spirit selected and sent out these missionaries, showing that the true method of world evangelization is to have spirit-sent men to preach the gospel.

July 12.

The grand theme of Paul's preaching was justification by faith. Those who receive Christ as their Saviour are freely justified from all things. Jesus took the place of the sinner that the sinner might have His place (II Cor. 5:21). This is the missionary message for all times.

July 19.

At Lystra Paul and Barnabas "so" preached the gospel that a great multitude believed. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces belief in Christ can be said to be preaching in the biblical sense.

July 26.

Receiving the Gentiles on the simple condition of faith in Christ provoked a spirit of controversy in the church. Through Christ the middle wall of partition was broken down so that in this dispensation God makes no distinction between Jew and Gentile.

August 2.

James shows to the Jewish believers scattered abroad, who were passing through sore trials and persecutions, that true religion was to receive with meekness the engrafted Word, and live a self-restrained, unselfish life, trilling the tongue, helping those in need, and keeping unspotted from the world.

August 9.

Because of differences of opinion over John Mark, Paul and Barnabas separated. God overruled their contention to the wider dissemination of the gospel.

August 16.

The believer has been born twice, of the flesh and of the Spirit. A mortal conflict goes on within him. The Christian's victory over the flesh is by yielding to the Holy Spirit, who dwells within.

August 23.

On the second missionary journey Paul attempted to preach in Asia Minor, but the Holy Spirit shut the doors against him. At Troas he had the explanation in the vision of a man from Macedonia calling him to preach the gospel in Europe. Divine guidance is as truly through closed doors as through open doors.

August 30.

Because of the casting out of an evil spirit from a slave girl at Philippi, Paul and Silas were imprisoned. As they were singing God's praises in the jail, God miraculously delivered them.

September 6.

To be in Christ is to have gain above the best things in the world. Those who are in Christ will have His mind, and therefore will press towards the goal.

September 13.

Though unselfishly preaching the Word of God, Paul was hated and persecuted by the Jews.

September 20.

Because Paul had experienced the life in Christ, and knew whom he had believed, he with undaunted courage went about preaching the gospel.

ANGINA PECTORIS

PROBABLY no other disease is the cause of as much dread and apprehension as angina pectoris, known to the public as breast pain, or sometimes as palpitation of the heart. Its sudden onset, its intense pain and its generally fatal outcome fully justify the popular fear of this condition.

Not only are its attacks dreaded by physicians, but it is also singularly mystifying, since nothing is definitely known regarding its cause. It strikes without warning and is often fatal at the first attack. So it is feared by physicians quite as much as by laymen.

What is it? What causes it and what can be done for its relief? These important questions Dr. Glenworth R. Butler endeavors to answer in a recent article in the Long Island Medical Journal.

Angina pectoris is a disease which is in a class by itself. Most diseases of the human body are due to some recognizable cause, even if everything is not known about them. The physician, when called, can see and recognize some characteristic mark by which he can identify or, as doctors say, "diagnose" the disease.

But angina pectoris shows no mark. Even after death neither the knife nor the microscope can find any trace of anything by which it can be definitely decided that the patient died of this disease or that he ever had it. The doctor is dependent entirely on what the patient himself can tell.

And the patient can tell little. Only that he, an apparently perfectly well man, has had a sudden pain or sense of oppression in his chest; that, following that, an intensely sharp, tearing pain has flashed up to his left shoulder and down his left arm and that he has a terrible sense of impending death. The pain and the fear may pass off or the heart may suddenly stop beating. The patient may live for years, always in dread of a sudden recurrence or he may recover from the first attack to die in a few hours or days from the second or third attack.

The cause is not known. Hardened arteries of the heart, hardening of the heart itself, increased pressure in the blood vessels have all been held responsible. Yet a man may die of a first attack and none of these conditions be found, while all of them may be found after death in persons who have never had a sign of angina.

Don't think every pain in your chest is angina. Few of them are. If you have real angina, live quietly, eat plain, simple food, control your temper, get plenty of sleep, and do what your doctor tells you. There's nothing else to do.

SUN BATHS FOR BABIES

SUNLIGHT is good for all young and growing things, whether they be kittens or corn, beans or babies. Any growing plant or animal deprived of sunlight will be weak and pale.

The old grandmother and the "practical nurse" will tell the young mother that babies are delicate and have weak eyes and that strong light is bad for them. So many babies are kept in shaded rooms and, when they are taken outdoors, they are wrapped up in many layers of clothing and blankets, they are packed tightly in the baby carriage among many fat pillows and then the hood of the carriage is pulled up, so as to keep out every ray of sunshine. Sometimes a blanket or shawl is hung over the front, for fear a stray beam of sunlight may reach the baby. If a baby in such a situation could only express his feelings, the burden of his song would probably be that good old gospel hymn, "Let a little sunshine in."

Habit and tradition are hard to overcome and no mother wants to experiment on her baby.

Sunlight will not only cure but will also prevent rickets and tuberculosis. There's plenty of it and it doesn't cost anything.

But in using sunlight, as in using any other kind of treatment, we must also use common sense.

As soon as he's three or four weeks old, baby can have a sun bath. Turn him on his side in the baby carriage, push back the hood and give him five minutes of sunlight on his cheeks and hands. Then turn him over and give the other side of his face five minutes. Increase this three minutes every day, until he is getting an hour in the morning and an hour in the afternoon.

Then roll up his sleeves, one at a time, and give his arms three minutes, gradually increasing. Then his legs. In colder weather the sun bath may be taken indoors in front of a sunny window, only the window must be open enough to let the sunlight in direct, as ordinary window glass strains out the ultra-violet rays, which are of the most value.

White babies may be fashionable, but brown babies are healthier and happier.

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but I have found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before each one was born, for weakness, vomiting, poor appetite and backache, and again after childbirth because of dizzy headaches. It is a good medicine for it always helps me. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the last eight years for constipation."—Mrs. MABEL LA POINT, R. F. D. No. 1, Turtle Lake, Wisconsin.

In a recent canvass, 98 out of every 100 women say they were benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ALL RUN DOWN, NOW HEALTHY

"Honestly, in all my 15 years of experience as a nurse I have never known of a medicine that compares with Tanlac." is the glowing tribute of Nurse M. E. Chappelle.

"Time and again I have recommended Tanlac and always with surprising results. Some time ago my Mother complained of being generally run down and on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had no appetite, her stomach was disordered, digestion weakened and her bowels were most irregular. "Tanlac came to her aid at once, brought on a vigorous appetite so that she began to eat with the greatest relish, and made the digestive organs function properly once more. In a short time she was well, happy and strong, and although over 80 years of age she is now vigorous enough to look after her household duties and go out quite a little, too. This is why I praise Tanlac and consider it the best tonic and health builder ever discovered."

What Tanlac has done for others it can also do for you. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Peter Folkers entertained the pinochle card club last Wednesday afternoon. Cards were played at three tables, prizes being awarded to Mrs. Frank Cheney and Mrs. Herbert Minger. Refreshments were served.

Mr. Manson La Hue, section foreman of the E. J. & E. R. R. is enjoying a vacation.

The Ladies Aid of the Evangelical church held their coffee Tuesday instead of Thursday, on account of the Peotone fair.

Harold Heisner and Harold Knicker who were injured in an auto accident are improving nicely.

Mrs. Edwin Dralle of Andres entertained at a shower in honor of sister Miss Ella Lankenau and her approaching marriage with Richard Oetter. Games were played and prizes awarded to Mrs. Glenn Folkers, Mrs. Fred Heusner and Miss Eloise Kohlhausen.

Later in the evening a small wagon with gifts, drawn by little Ralph Dralle, Oista Lankenau and Yvonne Heusner were presented to the honored guest. Delightful refreshments were served.

Last Friday evening, at their home, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lankenau received their relatives at a reception in honor of their daughter, Ella who will soon become the bride of Richard Oetter.

The Martha sewing circle of St. Peter church have made two quilts and four rugs which they have sent to the St. Louis Student Seminary.

The second M. E. Church of Green Garden after having been remodeled was re-dedicated last Sunday with services in the morning, afternoon and evening at which large congregations were present. The following ministers were present: Rev.

Geo. Ruff, H. C. Leppert, Carl Hédler, B. F. Duncan, Otto Frey, Drs. Wm. Esslinger, Smith and Hoffman. Mrs. Wesley Holstein, Mrs. M. Faulkner and Edna Bettenhausen each sang a pleasing solo. Mrs. Jochum and daughter Edna sang a duet and a solo by Edward Wunderlich and a selection by the West Peotone quartett.

The following are the pastors who have served this charge since it was built in 1868: Mr. Meyer, C. Stellner, Mr. Feistkom, Mr. Dueringer, Peter, Haas, Klensky, Wm. Esslinger, Roegge, Menzer, Ruff, Stahmer Tonjes and the present pastor, Otto Frey who has been untiring in his efforts to build up the church.

Sunday School Supt., Edward Bettenhausen and president of the Ladies Aid, Mrs. Amanda Dralle.

The Harvest picnic given by the Industrial club last Saturday drew a large crowd. Over 439 tickets being sold. There was a good display of grain and vegetables but no apples or peaches. In the Volley Ball games between Frankfort and Green Garden the later was the winning team.

Harold Folkers and Henry Elsner have returned home after visiting in Michigan for a few days.

There will be no services at the St. Peter Evangelical church next Sunday, Sept. 27 as Rev. Lambrecht will preach in the morning at Manhattan at the missionary festival. The local congregation has also been invited to attend this service.

The Sunday school will be held at 10 o'clock at the local church.

The ball game last Sunday at the Pieper diamond between Monee and the Frankfort team was won by Frankfort.

Manson La Hue who has been ill is improved.

Miss Florence Geuther who is attending high school in Chicago spent Saturday and Sunday with her father and grandma Baumgartner.

Lester Koerner, Orville Schroeder and Harold Cheney are attending the Metropolitan business college at Joliet.

John Harnack and John Bango returned Monday from Michigan where they spent several days with relatives. They brought with them a good supply of apples and peaches and report large apple crop in Mich. Mrs. Peter Pfeifer is ill at the home of her son George in Chicago Heights, Ill.

Rev. and Mrs. Holdgraf of Manhattan spent Sunday at the Henry Stellwagen home and Rev. Holdgraf preached at the Mission feast at the St. Peter church in the evening.

Mrs. Max Haass is enjoying a visit with her sister who is here from California.

Clarence Pieper who was hurt in an auto accident recently is still confined to bed but is improving.

The New Fords

Cars Most Attractive, with Longer lower Bodies—Many Other Refinements—Better Brakes.

First of the improved Ford cars to arrive in Mokena went on display last week in the show rooms of Cooper & Hostert, local authorized Ford dealer, and immediately attracted the attention of every one.

To say that people who saw the cars were surprised at their appearance would be putting it rather mildly. The new types exceed all expectations in improved appearance and more comfort and convenience. For the most part the bodies have been completely redesigned and conform in every respect to the most advanced features of body construction.

Not only have bodies been built over, but they are set on a lower chassis frame and with larger, low hanging fenders impart to the complete car a striking suggestion of riding and driving ease.

While Cooper & Hostert have been able so far only to show the Touring car, other types will be shown as quickly as they can be obtained from the Ford Motor Co. branch at Chicago where, because of their popularity demands on production are somewhat delaying immediate delivery of all types of cars.

STATE BULLETIN ON WHITE SNAKE ROOT.

A bulletin of unusual interest and importance among farmers and dairy herd owners has been prepared by the State Department of Agriculture at Springfield. It deals with the problem of white snake root poisoning, and contains all data obtained through an exhaustive research ordered by Governor Small when epidemics broke out in several counties last spring.

The bulletin is illustrated with pictures of the plant itself, and type matter deals with minute descriptions, so that even a layman, having studied the pamphlet, could distinguish the weed from other similar growth in a pasture. Pictures also show infected cattle in various stages of ailment, even down to the death struggle. Symptoms also are fully described, enabling the cow owner to recognize the source of ailment and take steps to combat it. The bulletin will be sent free upon application by any interested person to the Department of Agriculture at Springfield, or, O. T. Olsen, superintendent of the Division of Plant Industry, who collaborated with the Governor in its preparation.

The broker was very sick, and at times delirious. In one of his lucid moments he asked the nurse what the last readings had shown his temperature to be. "One hundred and one," she said. "Good," said the patient. "When it gets to 101½, sell."

Duck Refuge

The Winneshiek bottom preserve is a 300-acre tract of land along the Mississippi river. Congress in 1924 passed a law preserving this land from drainage for a breeding and feeding place for ducks. There have been two or three instances where land in this vicinity has been drained for agricultural purposes and found absolutely useless. It was through the efforts of the Izaak Walton league that this land was preserved.

WORTH

On Sept. 16th, Mrs. E. E. Stromberg and daughter Hazel, also Mrs. G. M. Peterson were initiated and are now members of Elm Chapter No. 271, O. E. S.

The Evergay Club had the pleasure of entertaining Miss Selma Baumer of Chicago at their regular meeting Thursday night, Sept. 17th, at the home of Miss Hazel Stromberg. All the members were present with the exception of Miss Edna Hosman and Ethel Foyle. Miss Lillian Kaufman arrived a little late, but we are glad to report she got there in time for the jelly beans and Miss Stewart's performance. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Miss Bessie Zuidema. It's a long way girls, but it will be worth while and we hope to see every one there.

September 20th was a glorious morning and the Sunday Evening Club were able to have their 6 o'clock breakfast in the Forest Preserve. They had bacon and eggs, rolls, and coffee and roasted weenies. Due credit must be given the girls, also Elmer Lysen, Albert Soderland and Ed Rolfe who can always be depended upon to get up in time. They find it worth while, so why don't YOU try it? The club expected to have Mr. Clifton Hartman and Alva (Bill) Martin, the noted Northwestern Track Man, along with them but they were unable to come. Better luck next time.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hendrickson and family, of Harbert, Michigan, visited at the home of Mrs. Hendrickson's sister, Mrs. Lysen, over the week end.

Have you seen the new Overland Sedan? Don't crowd boys and girls, you will all get a ride if you give Lillian a chance. It will be pretty handy when Miss Kauffman wants to go golfing.

Just mention "Painless Dentist" to John Little. He will soon tell you that "there ain't no such animal".

WRECKED

SYNOPSIS.—Living in the small English village of Darbury, old-fashioned and sedate place, Barbara Stockley, daughter of a widowed mother, is soon to celebrate her marriage to Hugh Roodale, rich and well connected. Barbara is adventurous, and has planned, with an aunt, an airplane trip to Australia. Major Alan Croft, famous as an aviator, is to be the pilot. At her first meeting with Croft Barbara is attracted by his manner and conversation, different from the cut-and-dried conventions of her small town.

PART ONE—Continued.

She knit puzzled brows, trying to follow his meaning. What keynote could there be to all the jumble of separate entities that make up life? "What keynote the world uses, I suppose, what you want to discover?" he asked.

"Do I? Is that it?" Eagerly she leaned toward him. "Oh, I wonder—What do you think it is?"

He blew out a cloud of smoke; then smiled. "Goodness knows! Perhaps there isn't one. What private ones do we all use? Don't you often wonder, when you meet a number of new people—"

"But I never do meet them! It is quite an event to meet a stranger," she assured him.

"Well, you shall soon meet plenty—of all nationalities. Even natives, in the Philippines."

Barbara came back to practical realities with a start. "Natives! Are they black? I should loathe them."

"Oh, no; surely not. I like them immensely."

She looked at him incredulously. "But why the Philippines?"

"I have to go to Borneo and the Philippines for the firm." He plunged into details of the journey, and she listened enthralled. To flash like a meteor over France, Italy, Egypt, India, with a few days at each landing place, and the detour to the Pacific, exceeded all she had ever dreamed. The world—at last!

Abruptly he broke off.

"But I have not yet discovered, in strange lands and crowded cities, what is wrong with the world! I hope you succeed in your heart's desire." It's a tall order.

A subtle change in his manner gave her the impression that, inwardly, he laughed at her.

"Anyway, it is a wonderful chance. I am grateful to you for giving it to me," she replied, with stilted politeness.

"To me?" he asked; then gave a short laugh. "Oh, not at all. I am merely the pilot."

She flushed crimson, remembering her own words at the sweets-stall. With a sense of relief, she saw Hugh halting her from the terrace steps.

"Are you fixing up the trip?" he asked, joining them. Placing his hands on the girl's shoulders, he smiled across at Croft. "Look here! Will you please satiate Bab with travel, with sight-seeing, so that she returns fed up to the teeth? That will insure a peaceful honeymoon, and I shall be eternally obliged."

Barbara explained: "Hugh wants to spend his honeymoon in his father's farm yard; and I want to go—"

"Somewhere in the moon," Hugh broke in. "So our only hope of a 'happy issue' as the prayer-book calls it, lies in you."

"Good lord!" laughed the other. "It's a rather curious position! When is the wedding?"

"On December twentieth. Be sure you send her back in time!"

Croft's face grew sober. In his quick, decided fashion, he swung his legs over the parapet and stood up, facing Hugh.

"You are quite willing for her to go, I suppose?"

Both glanced at him, surprised at the earnestness of his tone.

"I know you will take the utmost care of her," Hugh replied.

"Of course."

Suddenly and unexpectedly the younger man held out his hand. Croft took it in a close grip; but Barbara gave an amused laugh.

She struck down lightly with her fingers; and the two hands fell apart.

Barbara . . . Stood Close Beside Him, Watching . . . Nervously.

feeling a suspicious lump in his throat. "I'll meet you, when you come back. It won't be long."

Hugh knew that his Barbara's warm-hearted impulses occasionally resulted in moments of embarrassment. Gently loosening the clinging arms, he bade Aunt Dolly farewell. Then he turned to the cabin door, hesitated, came back, kissed Barbara's wet cheeks passionately again, and ran down the steps.

Croft leaned down and waved farewell; then he gave the signal. Slowly, the machine glided away.

But with quick transition, the movement merged into the swift run of a bird seeking cover. Faster and yet faster, it became a wild roaring race across the grass, which soon the little wheels failed to touch, as, at an incredibly short distance, the airplane rose lightly from the ground.

Thrice she cried, high above the heads of those who watched. Then, sure of her capabilities, she turned, with a final upward curve, and settled down to her work.

The days wore on to weeks, full of the important trifles that constitute daily country life. For a time Darbury felt a little flat, lacking in sensation. There seemed to be a dearth of subjects for conversation; and when a community has nothing to talk about, it is in a bad way.

Letters from Barbara were frequent and full of enthusiasm. Croft was evidently fulfilling the part allotted to him to the letter, during the calls at each sight-seeing place; and Hugh felt grateful.

When letters became more infrequent, owing to distance, wireless messages stated that all was well.

With delightful suddenness a fresh thrill was provided for Darbury by Jenny Grant, a village girl. She had, it was rumored, "got into trouble" with a sailor who had recently been on leave in the neighborhood. Mrs. Stockley, with commendable charity, placed a large part of the blame on the girl's mother. The mother had seduced from the church; therefore, of course, she was no favorite with the bishop's descendant.

There is, proverbially, a lull before a storm. Darbury, during those peaceful days of late summer, had no intimation of the most terrible thrill of all, in these days of thrills.

Hugh, especially, was of too bright and wholesome a nature to have misgivings, when the sun shone and all seemed well.

Returning one day with a friend from a morning's cubbing, it was therefore with no sense of impending disaster that he reined up at Lake Cottage and proposed calling. A small group of people, talking together near the main road, turned and cast wondering looks in his direction.

It was one of those glorious mornings at the end of September in which late summer and early autumn intermingle. Hugh glanced round with a pleased sense of appreciation.

Then he rang the bell.

The face of old Martha, who opened the door, was red and swollen with weeping. Her limbs trembled, as if from sudden shock.

For a moment she gazed at him blankly, half in astonishment, half in fear; then, without a word, she burst into hysterical sobs and turned back into the house.

The color ebbed a little from Hugh's face. He looked at his friend in vague apprehension, and they silently followed the woman into the drawing room. Instead of being bright and fragrant with the flowers Barbara loved about her, it seemed strangely cold, gloomy and deserted.

A chill fell on Hugh.

"Where is Mrs. Stockley?" he asked uneasily.

"Upstairs," sobbed Martha. She walked to the little bureau and picked up a telegram. Turning slowly, she half held it toward him, and the filmy paper trembled violently in her hands.

Hugh took the telegram slowly from the woman. For a moment he looked uncertainly at her frightened face, then round the familiar room, as if dreading to read it.

At last, with an obvious effort, he raised the sheet, and turned away.

The telegram fluttered, unheeded, to the floor; and Hugh raised shaking hands to his head, in a vague uncertain manner. He turned slowly, his face ashen, haggard and old all at once. His lips moved a little, but no sound came; he looked at his friend with the bewildered eye of a dumb animal awakening to some terrible pain of which, as yet, it is not wholly conscious.

Tom Westwoods picked up the telegram.

It was from the London agents of Croft's firm. He read the few bald sentences so fraught with tragic meaning. The airplane, it stated, in characteristically crude words, was missing. The lifeless body of the mechanic had been found in the water, where, it was feared, the rest had perished. Search was in progress, but with small hope of success. A typhoon had swept across the seas verging upon the Philippine Islands. One wireless message of distress had come from the machine.

Then silence fell.

PART TWO

The Rising Orchestra

I

Dawn broke at last, the first dull lines of gray merging into a myriad pearly tints. Birds awoke in the forest; rustled amid the leaves; shook their wings; then flew forth to hunt for breakfast; their brilliant plumage reflected the sun's rays in a thousand bright hues as they flashed from beneath the shadowy trees.

Upon the sloping shore of a tiny cove, the waters of the lagoon lapped in a gentle, rippling murmur. Farther away, the surf of the open sea boomed like distant thunder against the barrier reef; waves swirled angrily through the gap which formed an inlet.

Partly telescoped upon a jagged promontory jutting inland from the entrance, rising and falling helplessly at the mercy of the tide foaming through, loomed a mass of something dark. It looked strange, shapeless, forlornly tragic, as if flung down by a ruthless hand and forgotten.

Upon the ground of the opposite cove, near a heap of wet coats, little rivulets trickling from her drenched garments, lay the inert form of a girl. A man, likewise sodden from head to foot, knelt beside her, anxiously forcing brandy between her pale lips from a small pocket-flask. Presently he paused, a sudden dread in his heart, and with his head close to her wet blouse, listened.

Then, with renewed energy, he set vigorously to work again.

At last she gave a little quivering sigh. Her hands moved gropingly. Soon, with another, longer sigh, she opened her eyes and gazed blankly, as one newly awakened from a troubled dream, into his face. Raising a hand to her head, the vacant gaze changed to one of feeble wonder.

"Why, are you—hurt?" she half whispered.

Until then he had not recognized that the stream trickling down his face was blood. With his fingers he traced what was apparently a long jagged cut stretching from his temple to the left ear: it smarted when touched. Taking the wet handkerchief from his pocket, he sat back and dabbed at it with the clumsy movements of a man unused to troubling over personal injuries. His look was still fixed upon the girl's face.

As she gazed round the unfamiliar scene, an expression of bewilderment crept into her eyes. Remembrance slowly returning, this merged into concern, then fear.

"Where are we? Where are we?" "We crashed on that reef," he replied quietly. "The last engine gave out—"

"But—how—did we get here?" "I found you in the water, and swam in."

Fearfully she looked toward the dark mass, as if measuring mentally the distance from shore, scarcely understanding the full meaning of this feat. Then she looked about her as if seeking somebody.

Finally turned to him, mutely asking the question her troubling lips dared not frame.

He laid a hand upon her shoulder, instinctively fortifying her for the complete realization of the dread that was dawning in her brain.

She caught his arm in a feverish grip, her eyes wild. "Captain Croft—tell me! The others? . . . Where is Aunt Dolly?"

A look, so full of anguish that it seemed as though the soul behind were in the tortures of hell, was her only answer.

She gazed, awestruck, for a breathless moment, at his haggard eyes and drawn blood-stained face, at the features usually so cloaked with reserve now betraying unbearable agony; then, with a hoarse moaning cry, she collapsed in an abandonment of horror at his feet.

Presently Croft raised his head, and stood up. He gave one long look seaward, to the grave of such unlimited pride and hope; to where, also, those who had risked their lives with him now lay hidden beneath the smiling blue.

With a long sigh, he turned away, setting his teeth and squaring his shoulders. . . . then looked at the figure lying face downward at his feet.

Dropping on his knees, he gently raised her, so that she leaned against him.

"Come!" he urged, with forced brightness. "We must buck up, you know, and see what can be done."

"Tell me—first—what happened," she besought. "It seems like a—hideous nightmare—"

Shuddering violently, she hid her face again.

"We had some engine trouble soon after leaving the Philippines, as you know, which obliged us to return there to land," he replied. "We got caught in the center of a typhoon near the coast, and were driven completely out of our course."

"It was awful—awful! That terrible, deafening roar!" She began again to tremble violently.

"We were hurled into an air-pocket which caused us to drop nearly a thousand feet," he continued hurriedly. "That put two more engines out of action and injured the fourth. Only a miracle prevented our being dashed straight into the sea. After a bit I saw land here, and hoped to reach it in time; but she crashed too soon—"

He stopped, perceiving the state of her shattered nerves. Standing up, he raised her with him; and she clung convulsively to his arm, every limb shaking as if with ague.

Unclassing his hands, he drew her arm through his, turning their steps inland; his own feelings being almost beyond his usual iron control, he spoke roughly:

"For heaven's sake, don't talk or think about it all, just now! We shall go raving mad if we do!"

The words and tone acted as a tonic. Something of her first feeling of inferiority in his presence returned, causing her to struggle fiercely against the weakness that threatened to overcome her.

"There's generally an opening in a briar reef opposite a fresh-water river," Croft observed.

"Why?" she inquired, without any interest. To talk of anything, however, was better than the silence which encouraged thought.

"It's supposed that the sediment it contains injures the reef-building polypes, preventing their working opposite. The polypes can't live and work below a certain depth—about twenty fathoms or so. Awfully interesting, coral! Don't you think so?"

She confessed entire ignorance on the subject. This little digression, however, had served its purpose for them both. Drawing her arm free, she proposed bathing their faces in the cool stream. Revived by this, she became aware of their bedraggled state, of the discomfort of wet clinging garments, and of Croft's ineffectual efforts to staunch the wound on his head.

Shyly she went to him where he knelt upon the bank.

The man seems to be efficient and the girl fairly strong. What next?

Bad Day

The beggar was so obviously neither blind nor lame that the "Help the Blind and Crippled" sign he carried only made him seem the more robust.

"Say, mister, I haven't taken in a thing for 24 hours," he whined, as he shoved his hat under the nose of a passer-by.

"Then don't expect to begin by taking me in now," said the intended victim, as he ran for a street car.

The Triumph of Tears

By REV. J. R. SCHAFER
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—O Jerusalem, how oft would I . . . but ye would not.—Luke 13:34.

A famous painting in Wanamakers, Philadelphia, bears the title, "The Conquerors." In the foreground are the war lords of the past, on battle steeds, in war chariots, with waving banners and flaring trumpets—Alexander, Caesar, Attila the Hun, Timon the Tartar, Napoleon, are followed by an endless, militant host in the triumphal march of history.

On either side of this proud, blood-thirsty procession are the naked bodies of the slain in attitudes of horrible anguish, headless, dismembered, crushed, torn, ravished. This is the pictured story of the kings of earth—the great age-long, world-wide conquest of war. Awe, terror, suffering, shame, sorrow, and death follow.

In the Gospel of Luke is pictured another triumph of history in vivid contrast. It is not painted on canvas but portrayed in words of matchless beauty and pathos. Not on prancing war horse, not in royal robes and trappings, not guarded by a retinue of lancers and swordsmen, not followed by captive slaves and chariots laden with spoils; without the faintest semblance of earthly triumph.

The King is a humble peasant of Galilee, son of a Nazarene carpenter, who has risen to prominence and popularity by His remarkable ministry of teaching and healing. He is riding an ass, over the back of which is thrown, not a purple cloth of gold, but the garments of His disciples. His courtiers are eleven sons of toil, peasants like himself. This strange procession is journeying toward Jerusalem. The curious gaze of the Passover pilgrims is attracted by this unique spectacle. They inquire its meaning. Suddenly the voice of a student of prophecy is lifted in a shout of "hosanna." He has recognized the fulfillment of Zechariah's words, "Behold your king cometh, riding upon an ass."

The multitude startled at the unexpected announcement, thrills with excitement and takes up the cry. Tumultuous shouts of acclamation rend the air, "Hosanna, Hosanna, blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." They spread their garments in the way.

They break off branches of palms and wave them in triumph. It seems as if we must hear the strains of martial music, behold the standard of a new ruler unfurled, see the rush to arms of a sympathetic crowd who will follow the King to the conquest of the Holy City, but no such incidents and experiences occur.

The humble procession moves on its way down the slope of Olivet. An abrupt turn in the road reveals a thrilling view of the city. It is a sight unparalleled, flooding the soul with ecstasy and joy. The King, in cognito, pauses. What strange emotions throb in His breast! He recalls the struggle of armies, the siege and overthrow, the captivity and sorrow; then he foresees coming judgment, the most terrible siege of history, the utter destruction and desolation of the city until "not one stone is left upon another." He breaks out in lamentations crying "O Jerusalem, how oft would I . . . but ye would not."

What a sight to behold—a conqueror weeping! Earth had never witnessed such a triumph—the triumph of tears. Why this strange form of conquest? This is Heaven's King who came not to destroy but to save. It is the conquest of love. He weeps because:

I—Eternal Love Is Exhausted.

The coming of this King to Israel was God's final appeal to the nation. For centuries He had been wooing His people. They had forsaken Him for the idols of the heathen. Long He had called and entreated, but they would not hear. He sought to win them with rewards. He warned them with judgments. He was as tender as a nursing mother. He responded to their faintest cry. Last of all He sent His only Son to tell them of His love in language they could not misunderstand. When he had exhausted love's articulations upon them, they still rejected Him. There is nothing more He can do for the nation. He is now wooing the whole world, beseeching both Jew and Gentile to be reconciled.

II—Judgment Is Coming.

Christ knew what they were so blindly rejecting. He had described in the most vivid and terrifying language, the impending horrors. They laughed Him to scorn. He could do nothing more. His heart is broken, as in helplessness, He must give them up to sorrows to come. Nothing but judgment remains for every impenitent.

III—Opportunity Is Despised.

Their day of visitation had come. The King is in the midst. "He will fulfill the promises made to the fathers and make Jerusalem, the joy of the whole earth." Will they crown Him and seat Him on David's throne? No, they will not have this man to reign over them. They prefer their sins. So men treat the Son of God today. He offers transcendent emoluments and rewards. He warns of judgment to come. He pleads, He entreats, but still men refuse. The Savior weeps. Many are conquered by His tears.

Nation Honors Dead

Honor to the dead in the form of monuments of carved stone is well carried out in the United States. Last year more than 400,000 tons of stone were used in building monuments to the dead and for gravestones. Some of the monuments represented work by accomplished sculptors, while many were the work of ordinary stone cutters.

Permanent roads are a good investment—not an expense

How Much Are Poor Roads Costing You?

5,000,000 of America's 18,000,000 motor vehicles are recognized as an economic necessity on the farm.

Is your car giving the full efficiency of which it is capable—and at the lowest cost per mile possible?

Not if you are jolting over bumps and ruts. Not if you get stuck in the mud.

In addition to the time you thus lose along the way, you also pay from one to four cents a mile more in gasoline, tire and repair bills than you would pay on permanently paved highways.

Think, too, how many so-called improved roads have gone to pieces within the past few years, thereby piling up huge maintenance and rebuilding costs.

Contrast all this with the record of Concrete Roads—the roads that have remain built out and maintenance built in. Paved and unyielding, free of bumps, ruts, holes, mud and dust, they are, in every way, the most economical roads.

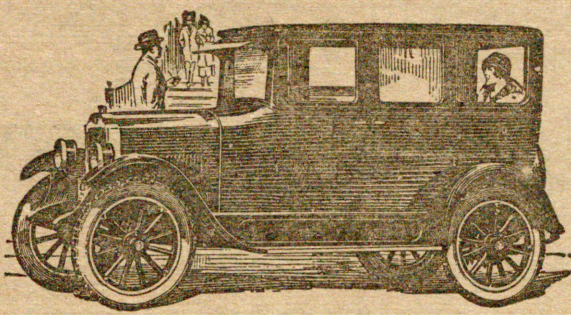

Tell your highway officials you want more Concrete Roads. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

Let us give you all the facts about Concrete Roads, including the experience of other communities. Ask for our free booklet, R-3.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

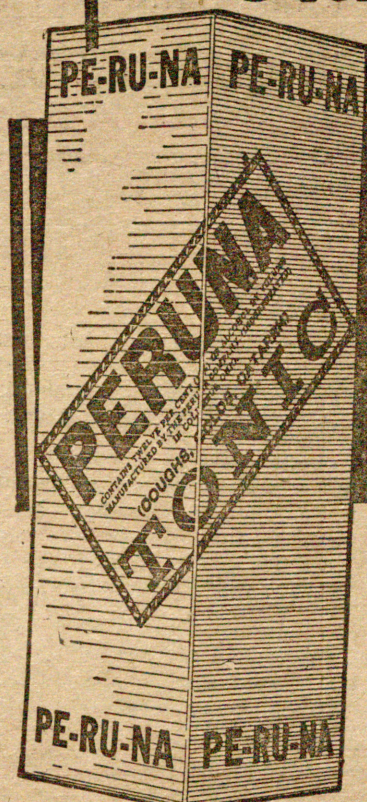

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "Horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "Vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

NURSERY RHYME PUZZLE

MOLLY, my sister, and I fell out.
I don't know what she's mad about.
I took her doll, her reins and ball,
But there's no need to fuss at all;
She ought to know they'd be returned,
She couldn't act worse if they'd all been burned.
Find Molly and another person. Lower right corner down, on hair bow
Upper right corner down, along doll.

Central Europe Sorry

It Imported Muskrats

Recently hunters shot a muskrat near Salzburg, Austria. Other muskrats have been seen near Vienna. Before 1906 this North American animal was unknown in Europe, but during that year a pair was brought from America and released on an estate near Prague. The progeny of these rats multiplied so fast that they soon spread to the Bohemian lakes and forests in spite of efforts to exterminate them. By 1913 they were all along the Moldau and along the Eger river in Bavaria. In 1914 they reached lower and upper Austria to the south and Saxony to the north. Soon they crossed the Danube but seem to have been stopped by the Austrian Alps. When the first muskrats were brought to Bohemia it was thought that they would furnish fur, but the climate of Europe does not seem to develop a suitable growth. Central Europe suffers the damage caused by the rodents without the compensation of being able to use the skins.

A Substantial REWARD
Thousands of people in America have been liberally rewarded for insisting on having USKIDE Soles on their shoes. USKIDE wears and wears and wears. Buy new shoes with genuine USKIDE Soles. USKIDE is comfortable, healthful, waterproof, good-looking. Protects against slipping. Look for the name USKIDE on the sole.—Adv.

Elk's Peak Put on

Map by Boy Scouts

The map of the United States is to have an addition. Elk's peak, near Portland, Ore., is to be the new feature. It has gained official notice through the suggestion and interest of boy scouts of Sellwood, Ore.

Troop 46 visited the peak last year while on an historical hike. The scouts, on their return, started their efforts to have the peak named. The troop brought the landmark to the attention of the National Geographic board.

The result has been the naming of Elk's peak, which will hereafter appear on all official maps of the country.

"The site, it is declared by old timers, was the habitat of hundreds of elk who roamed through the Willamette valley," stated a news account. "In fact, even after the district became settled, the elk were seen about the slopes of the peak."

Combination of Motions

Motion pictures are in reality a combination of still pictures. The first picture of the automobile shows the spokes of the wheels in one position. If the next exposure of the film were made when spoke No. 1 had advanced far enough to be in the position of spoke No. 2, the picture would show no motion, as spokes are identical. If spoke 1 had advanced less than half way to position of spoke 2, the forward motion would be noticed. If, however, spoke 1 advances more than half way to the observer, it would have the effect of spoke 2 moving backward, as that distance would be shorter and the apparent motion would be in that direction.

Greenland Hygiene

Tuberculosis is reported to be "making serious ravages among the natives of Greenland, where the knowledge of the principles of hygiene is primitive," says the United States Department of Labor. The Danish ministry of the interior and Danish health service are assisting the local government in the installation of a 20-bed hospital for tuberculous children. Measures for the protection of orphans in Greenland are also being undertaken.

Flying Into Matrimony

A young Swedish couple were recently married while flying through the air on board an airplane. When the machine, carrying a full complement of passengers, had risen to a height of 1,500 feet an altar was erected in the cabin, before which a Swedish clergyman performed the marriage ceremony, with a lawyer and his wife as witnesses. A wedding breakfast was then served, and the health of the couple drunk in champagne by all the passengers. The clergyman and the lawyer left the machine at Hamburg, but the couple continued their honeymoon trip to Amsterdam.

Its Advantage

They were discussing the advantages of the various college courses. "So you've decided on an art course instead of a scientific course?" inquired the girl. "Oh, yes," answered the youth, "it seemed the better course for me." Her next question was, "Why?" and his reply to that was, "Well, everybody says it's easier to forget."

Help our Merchants to help YOU

EVERYBODY will agree that a man succeeds and prospers only when he spends LESS money than he receives in a given period of time.

Let's apply this great economic test to the situation in this town: Our business men have invested—and continue to invest—their money in stocks of goods brought here to your very door to meet your daily needs.

Through the pages of this paper they advise you of their ability to serve this community. All of us know that they deserve our patronage. And remember, the more you trade with them the more funds they can invest in larger stocks and new lines.
